Three Types of Managed Security

1. The most basic managed security is managing individual security products or security controls.
2. Managed Products with MDR adds managed detection and response to traditional managed security. Products like EDR & SIEMS lend themselves to MDR services.
3. The most valuable single solution is a Managed SIEM. A Managed SIEM monitors ALL your security and key IT (servers, network, clients, M365). It provides real-time monitoring, correlation, AI analysis, threat hunting, alerting, and remediation enablement. A managed SIEM complements individual product management for a complete solution.

Benefits of Managed Security

The benefits to customers include solving problems resulting from shortage of technical staff, the need for a higher level of security expertise, the need to focus on other areas of the business or to be compliant with various regulations. Managed security provides compliance level reporting to aid with security regulation & cyber-insurance compliance.

Expert Managed Services are Secure, Scalable & Affordable

Customers can take advantage of eSecurity Solutions expert managed security services for all crucial areas of security and compliance. eSecurity Solutions can help you throughout the security solution cycle. Beginning with security audits and risk assessments, eSecurity Solutions can help you plan, assess risks, and define mitigation priorities.

Virtually all security can be outsourced to eSecurity Solutions as a managed service. Managed security solutions include security monitoring, gateway and endpoint security, access control and sophisticated threat monitoring. We provide managed security for all many security vendor products including gateway security (Firewalls, email, Web), endpoint EDR, email, access control and compliance (PCI, archiving, SIEM SOC).

Affordable Scalable Security Management

SIEM-SOC MDR Managed Detection & Response Services

eSecurity Solutions provides 24x7 services to companies to solve the need to manage security products and also to monitor and provide incidence response after attacks or disasters.

MDR services are a step up from product-centric managed security services in that the focus of MDR is to provide you with a secure integrated infrastructure that manages, monitors, and contains threats or attacks without your intervention. Once we see a threat, we analyze it and determine the best way to quickly contain it. At that point, we notify you and then the proper course for any further remediation can be determined.
